[REDACTED]

1. The Seoul Population Dispersion Committee was formed on 2 February 1951 with YUN Hyong-sik (尹永錫) as chairman. On 13 February YUN called a meeting of the various government agencies in Seoul to devise an evacuation program. According to the plan agreed upon, there would be three periods of evacuation, from 26 to 28 February for government workers, from 1 to 8 March for those who volunteered to leave the city, and from 8 March on for a mass evacuation. To implement this program the Seoul Population Dispersion Committee set up headquarters of 30 staff members in Posong High School.
2. Although North Korean government officials and their families voluntarily left Seoul, the citizens in general refused to leave. In one case the local population dispersion committee in Kye-dong had to force a family out of its home and nail the door shut. After 8 March the committee sent out officers to several markets in Seoul to force vendors to leave the city. These vendors, most of them young women, were taken to Chungang High School, given a dispersion certificate, and sent to towns such as Paju (126-50, 37-50), Pocheon (127-13, 37-54), and Yonchon (127-04, 38-06).
3. There was also an attempt to force persons physically fit for manual labor to evacuate Seoul to the Uijongbu and Morangpo (126-50, 38-00) area. A special committee was set up to expedite the evacuation of relatives of deceased North Korean soldiers. This committee, called the Committee for Dispersion of Family Members of Deceased Revolutionaries, had its headquarters in a civilian house near the Yiwa Mansion and was organized as follows:

AN Ki-song (안기성), chairman

O Kyu-ho (오규호), planning department

YI Ch'ung-im (이충임), planning department

YI Chong-il (이종일), organization department

KIM Yong-su (김용수), general affairs department
